Heritage College Electronics Technology Student wins at the 2007 Hats Off to You! Competition

Heritage College congratulates third-year Electronics Technology student Nancy Contois on becoming one of the regional winners of this year's Hats Off to You! Competition, which annually recognizes the achievements of women enrolled in vocational or technical education programs leading to traditionally male-dominated occupations or trades. This competition is intended to encourage them to persevere in their non-traditional career choices. Nancy's third-year project was a remote-controlled submarine and she is pictured here receiving her award and $500.00 prize.

On June 15, Nancy will achieve her dream of getting a D.E.C. (Diploma of College Studies) in Electronics Technology, with a specialization in Computers and Telecommunications. "She has an excellent set of work ethics, arriving on time every day ready to apply herself, meeting deadlines and working well with others," commented Electronics Technology Program Coordinator Kevin Cardamore. "These characteristics, along with a cheerful, determined and collaborative personality, have helped her to succeed in the traditionally male-dominated Electronics, Computers and Telecommunications field. To top it all off, she has achieved the highest academic ranking in her graduating class." For all of these reasons, this exceptional student has proved herself to be deserving of the recognition that this prestigious award provides. Nancy also has been selected as one of the Outaouais regional representatives to go to the national gala in Montreal on May 7.
