“It’s about time,” quipped Heritage College Student Association President Curtis Eastman, as he shared ribbon-cutting honours with Director General Claude J. Chénier and other members of the Student Association Executive at the recent official opening of the long-awaited, wireless Internet Café for students. During his address to the crowd of students, faculty and staff on hand for the opening ceremony, Director General Chénier remarked that the College had spared no expense to ensure that Heritage students can enjoy state-of-the-art technology in this much-needed lounge area, with a relaxing atmosphere and a level of sophistication that they can be proud to call their own.

Mr. Chénier went on to say that this innovative campus facility, when fully operational, will provide wireless Internet access for students who have compatible laptops and will offer other students access from seven wireless on-site terminals, four of which will be available within the next two weeks, with three more to be installed shortly thereafter. The on-site wireless equipment will include LCD panel monitors and “spill-proof” keyboards. In addition, students will be able to buy specialty coffees and hot chocolate to enjoy while they relax in surroundings that rival much larger upscale commercial establishments.
